Opportunity for all

Canada's First Poverty Reduction Strategy

The federal government released Canada's first poverty reduction strategy titled 'Opportunity for All'. The strategy names the Market Basket Measure (MBM) the official indicator of poverty and sets clear targets and timelines to lower the fraction of Canadians living in poverty.

MBM reflects the combined costs of a basket of goods and services that individuals and families require to meet their basic needs and achieve a modest standard of living. The basket includes items such as healthy food, appropriate shelter and home maintenance, and clothing and transportation. It also includes other goods and services that permit engagement in the community, particularly for children, youth, parents and seniors.

For more information, see the full report or the visual infographics.
